“ Ron was often at Sharon’s apartment when I would come to visit. I enjoyed talking with him. He had a way about him that made me feel like he was interested and present. He found out that I played chess and challenged me to a game. I punished him on the board. He wanted more. He was just learning the game. That’s how I think he approached life. No matter how hard life got, he wanted more. I will miss your presence Ron...
